BREWERIANA NEWS

GT Ales has done 'Battleaxe' for Wetherspoons, in cask.

Hook Norton has done '169' to commemorate 169 years of brewing. It is available in cask. They are also experimenting with lager. I understand they are being issued as trial numbers, and that they are currently on 'Trial #3', available at the brewery and in limited outlets. I believe it is available on handpump! They also have a micro-brewery which is producing trial brews.

Skelwith Fold Caravan Park has brewed and bottled 'Wild Ale'. The beer will be sold in aid of the British Beekeepers Association. I understand there are at least two different label designs.

Bristol Beer Factory has done 'Teardrop' in keg, cask and bottle and 'North to the Future' in cask.

Brick Brewery has done 'Strawberry and Cucumber Sour' and 'Double IPA', both in cans and on draught.

Hall & Woodhouse have canned 'Wicked Wyvern', the latest in their Mythical Beast range. They also did 'Tanglefoot Reserve' at 6% for their beer festival which is on the 23rd June, in cask and bottle.

Daleside has done 'Wet your Whistle' in cask for the World Cup.

Andwell Brewery has done 'Hit the Bar' in cask, for the World Cup.

Brewdog has canned 'Jet Trash'.

Skidders has done 'Splendid Tackle', described as 'try-umphant golden ale', in cask, for the Six Nations.

Wye Valley Brewery has done 'Deuce', with a tennis theme, in cask.

New Lion Brewery's latest limited edition bottled beers are 'Dry Rye', 'Ruax' and 'Blackberry Sour'.

Tempest Brewing has bottled 'Mango Berliner', 'Trimontium Saturation' and 'Vermont Sessions'. They also sell a large range of merchandise on their web site.

They have recently started canning. All that are so far available are limited edition trial cans. These consist of two of their regular brews and two collaboration beers. The collaboration beers were with Buxton Brewery, called 'Eildon Days', and with a US brewery, Green River, called 'Duration'. The regular brews are 'Long White Cloud' and 'Modern Helles'.

Bedlam Brewery has done 'Brewski' on draught for the world cup.

Lymestone Brewery has done 'Stonewall Penalty' in cask for the World Cup.

Westerham Brewery has done 'Toast of the Terminal' in cask for bars in Gatwick Airport, for their Summer Festival.

Rudgate has announced its limited-edition cask beers for July. They are 'Hops of a Nation', 'Sahara', and 'Brew no. 43'.

Details of the Annual Breweriana Auction and Memorabilia Swapmeet at Sowerby Bridge Station have been announced.

From "early doors" on 3rd November 2018 brewery memorabilia collectors, are due to congregate both inside the Jubilee Refreshment Rooms and on the Sowerby Bridge station car park in a frenzy of dealing and swapping of inn signs, posters, beer mats, bar mats, playing cards, glasses, bottles, bottle labels, bottle openers and other brewing related paraphernalia.

The subsequent Charity Auction and Raffle, all proceeds of which will benefit the West Yorkshire Forget Me Not Children's Hospice, commences at noon.

Donations of Brewery related items will be welcome at any West Yorkshire Forget Me Not Children's Hospice shop up to forty-eight hours before the start of the auction. The Forget Me Not Trust will be pleased to pass on to the Jubilee Refreshment Rooms before the day, any brewery related items handed in at a Forget Me Not Trust shop. Donations may also be left at the Jubilee Refreshment Rooms at any time of day up to two hours before the auction.

Contact Andrew Wright at the Jubilee Refreshment Rooms on 07974 218 547.

Shoei has produced a limited-edition Iron Maiden Trooper X Spirit III 'lid', (motorcycle helmet to you and me), bearing the name of the popular Robinson's beer. As Trooper items are widely collected it seems likely this will prove collectable. Only 666 Trooper lids will be made, with each individually numbered and packaged in an exclusive Trooper Limited Edition Box Set. Also included in the box set is a limited edition A3 Trooper canvas art print encased in a printed metal presentation tin, pint glass, Trooper Ale bar runner, sticker, key ring, lanyard and a retro pin badge. In fact, everything except the beer itself. And the price? £799.00!

Tucker's Maltings closure has come as a shock to many people. Brian Gates, who used to run the bottled beer shop believed all was going well, with so many micro breweries starting up providing a ready market. I understand it was pressure from the big maltsters (who can now do small batch deliveries overnight if needs be) that has made things difficult, they simply can't compete on price any more.

It's a Grade Two listed building, so no doubt it will eventually go the way of many brewery buildings, to become housing or offices of some sort. Brian thinks they have kept the other two parts of the building, Teignworthy and the shop area, for the rent they receive.

The shop has now put the following notice on the Tucker's Maltings web site.

NOTICE

Our online & mail order shop is now closed.

After 25 years of bottled beer sales, mail order & guided tours change is afoot here at the maltings and new opportunities arising. We will be handing over the reins of our bottle beer shop to a new and exciting business – The Taphouse & Bottle Shop – who will be creating a first for the area; a new micro pub.

The Taphouse are hoping to be able to reintroduce this service next year, so keep an eye on their website for any updates.

So don't try and order anything from them at present.

Guinness and Gunn?

Am I missing something, or does Innis & Gunn have a problem with its spelling? No...

... in fact it seems to be part of a very obscure and rather dull advertising campaign where they misspell their name deliberately, and they have even produced a limited edition glass using the incorrect spelling. Weird! Wouldn't putting 'Gu' in front of 'Innes' and 's' after it, make it more interesting?

The Black Country Living Museum is asking for memories and memorabilia about the Elephant and Castle Pub in Wolverhampton, which is now demolished, but they are trying to recreate. They also have a beer mat challenge competition with a prize of free admission to the museum and a fish and chip supper. You can enter the competition here.

AUCTIONS

This Brutton's slate sign sold for £290.00 plus fees of 15% plus VAT, making £342.20 in total, at Mendip Auction Rooms. Slate signs normally command high prices, and I would have expected this sign in good condition to realise £400.00 to £500.00, or even more if two bidders are especially interested. The image looks as though the sign could do with a good clean, but is otherwise OK, although it could be in worse condition than that, not shown up by the photographs. Bruttons of Yeovil became Brutton, Mitchell and Tom's in 1937, which in turn was acquired by Charringtons in 1960. This item is difficult to date, because it is tempting to say that it is older than 1937. However, the term 'Brutton's Bottled Beers' could have been used subsequent to then. Without a definitive answer to this, dating of this item could be as late as before 1960, but is more likely to be pre-1937.

This unusual Ind Coope item sold on E-bay for £67.55. The seller didn't say what size it was. It could be a matter of inches long or several feet. It is silvered glass, so could be described as a mirror. It had considerable damage, but judging by the price it fetched it must be a rare item. I wonder whether perhaps it is a push panel for a door, although it is quite elaborate for such a purpose. Also making something like a push panel out of glass might be inviting problems. Not knowing the size of it makes its purpose a complete mystery. Has anybody any idea what it might be?

This large Anglo Bavarian Ales enamel sign sold on E-bay for £271.00. It was in above average condition, but with some damage to the top right-hand area, extending down the right-hand side. The rest of the sign was quite good, with the bottles on the main part of the sign largely intact. The sign has an attractive design, depicting a row of the brewery's bottles, showing the labels quite prominently. The sign was described as 5' 3" high by 3' 6" wide. The seller states that the Anglo-Bavarian Brewery was founded in 1860 in Shepton Mallet. Brewing ceased in 1921 with a short resurrection from 1934-39. This sign must date back to before 1914, because it uses the word 'Bavarian' in the brewery title, which was dropped at the start of the first world war. The sign refers to Agents Thos. Whitefoot & Son of Bridgnorth (Shropshire), who were taken over in 1926 by Tanners wine merchants of Shrewsbury. This confirms that the sign doesn't date to the second 'resurrection' of the brewery. The sign was mounted on board by the seller, which may have contributed to its present above average condition.

This Hewitt's slate sign was sold at Golding, Young and Mawer of Lincoln for £300.00 plus fees which makes it £372.00. The sign looks to be in good condition. The variation in brightness of the picture is because of lighting conditions, not any problem with the sign. The price it realised is probably slightly on the low side, so somebody has obtained a nice rare sign for a good price. It may date to before 1934, when Hewitt's became a limited company, but there is no compulsion on a company to state 'Ltd.' as part of their name. The company was taken over by United Breweries in 1961, so it has to be before that year.
